MISSING LETTERS HER ASHES TO BE SCATTERED

R uttinger-Wright Letters Said to Be Taken from the Post Office.

A Second Inquest Begun on the Astor House Suicide.

Important Information of the Double Suicide Due from England.

Coroner Levy's second investigation into the death of "Fred Evans," the Astor House sui-cide, or William Wright, as has now been fully established by THE EVENING WORLD, began this afternoon.

Coronor Levy has summoned several of the witnesess who testifed at the first inquest. Among these are Perrin H. Sumner, the professional identifier, and the actress, Gertrude rm n, who thought she recognized in 'Evans" a former acquaintance of the stage. She was the first witness to be examined The general belief is that nothing new can be brought out in this investigation.

The theory of this case adopted by THE EVENING WORLD, that of the double suicide, is the only one upon which the facts already established beyond question can se explained.

The identification of Wright in the Astor House suicide has been so positive and could not be seen. Miss Whiting then went away, and about o'clock Saturday evening the body was found ping on the ground, under a tree near the pleie that neither Inspector Byrnes nor District-Aitorney Fitzgerald entertain the slightest doubt of its accuracy, and until stronger evidence of Wright's existence has been brought forward than any which has yet been presented, the fact of his death must be conceded.

WHOULT'S MISSING LETTERS.

One curious fact, however, remains unexplained. It has been learned that letters were written to Wright by his mother and his bruther Richard, the first of which should have reached New York about Feb. 11, and the second a week later. They were both addressed to the General Post-Office.

The letter was as follows:

Mr. R. C. Riordan:
